

O'NEIRO

BODY OF SUMMER

| by Odysseas Elytis |

Oh body of summer, naked, burnt
Eaten away by oil and salt
Body of rock and shudder of the heart
Great ruffling wind in the osier hair...
...Body, deep vessel of the day!

Greek Cheese | Tiri

Greece has a lot of different types of cheeses such as feta, graviera & kefalotiri. Each of these cheeses, being made in different parts of Greece, have distinctly different flavours due to the climate & soil of the area they are from.

Greek whey cheese has been dated back 4000 years ago. Homer writes about how the Greek cheese was made.

It is not just a food to have at the end of a meal & there are no fussy rules over when you should eat it, in which order of the meal or with which food groups. Greeks eat it with passion, consuming more cheese than any other nation in the world.

Greeks love to eat it at all times of the day. They will eat it on its own. Cooked as a snack or an appetizer [meze], fried, as in Saganaki, added to stuffed vegetables & omelette, or filled in pies [tiropita]. Raw, grated on pasta, with fruit & honey, drizzled with olive oil for a meze to go with a drink of Ouzo or crumbled over Greek salad.

Saganaki Recipe

Olive oil for frying | 8 slices Greek cheese [kefalotiri, kefalograviera, kasseri] cut 1cm thick
freshly ground black pepper | lemon wedges to serve

Dip cheese slices in flour before frying. Heat until hot enough olive oil to just coat the bottom of a large frying pan & heat without touching each other. Allow 1 minute cook on each side. Be careful as they can burn very quickly, so keep checking. Cook until they turn a golden colour & crisp slightly. Sprinkle with freshly ground pepper. Squeeze fresh lemon juice over the cheese slices & serve immediately.
